PLANTS :-

Plants are critical to other life. On this planet- because they form the basis of all food webs. Humans rely on plants for their survival in a multitude of ways. Plants provide multitude value to organisms throughout the food chain and support a life-sustaining atmosphere. The idea that plants provide non-nutritive value is less established. Most plants are autotrophic, creating their own food using water, carbon dioxide and light through a process called photosynthesis. Some of the earliest fossils found have been aged at 3.8 billion years. This fossil deposits show evidence of photosynthesis, so plants, or the plant-like ancestors of plants, have lived on this planet longer than most other groups of organisms. In horticulture, the term growth habit refers to the plant's growth and its development- on change in the plant's Height, shape and the kind of the growth it undergoes. Interaction with various animals influences the way plants adapt to their environment. From an evolutionary perspective, growth habits have the function of ensuring the survival and adaptation of plants in various habitats, consequently increasing the chances of successfully passing on the genes to the next generation.

Each plant is characterized by one of the three life histories: 1/ haploid, 2/ diploid and the most common haploid-diploid. Within each of these three types, there are also variations. Of the plants with haploid life cycles, most algae lack a dikaryotic phase, while most fungi have a dikaryotic phase. There are also other algae and fungi that are characterized by diploid life cycles. Lastly, plants with a haploid-diploid life history undergo an alternation of generations, either similar or dissimilar. In all of these life cycles, asexual reproduction may occur, but it is sexual reproduction that is responsible for genetic diversity. Due to variations arising separately and at different rates, the evolution of land

Survey
on
Urban Poverty in Morigaon Town
Date: 01-04-2023

Report

Poverty is still a dominant problem in Assam, not only in rural areas but also in urban areas. Although urbanisation is taking place rapidly and the income of the people increases from expansion of business and other economic activities, yet the original inhabitants are deprived from the benefits of urbanisation. In Morigaon town, the indigenous inhabitants are living in a pathetic condition amidst poverty. For understanding the urban poverty in deep, the students of 2nd semester of Economics Department undertake a Survey in Morimusalmah village in Morigaon Town. The government set the income level of Rs. 11,500 per month to declare a family Below Poverty Line (BPL). After conducting the survey, it is found that 60% of the households of the village are holding BPL card. But during the survey, it is found that many families whose income level are much higher than the prescribed limit are holding BPL card and availing various facilities from the government. The families having four wheelers and motor cycles with RCC buildings are hiding their actual income to get the BPL card. It is also revealed that during the survey that 8 households who are very poor still do not get housing facilities whereas high income families get house from government.

Feedback

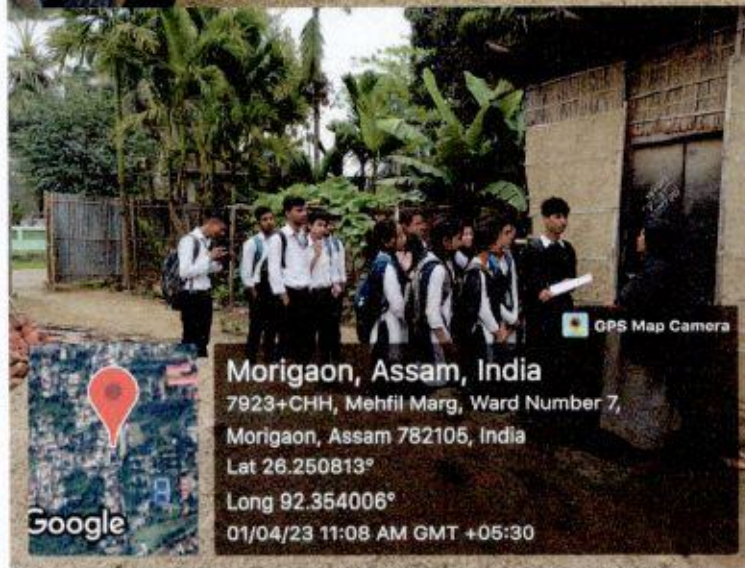

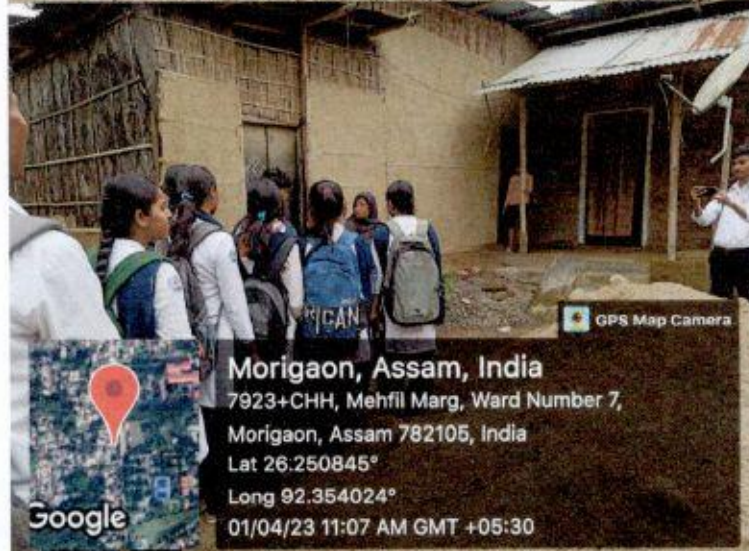

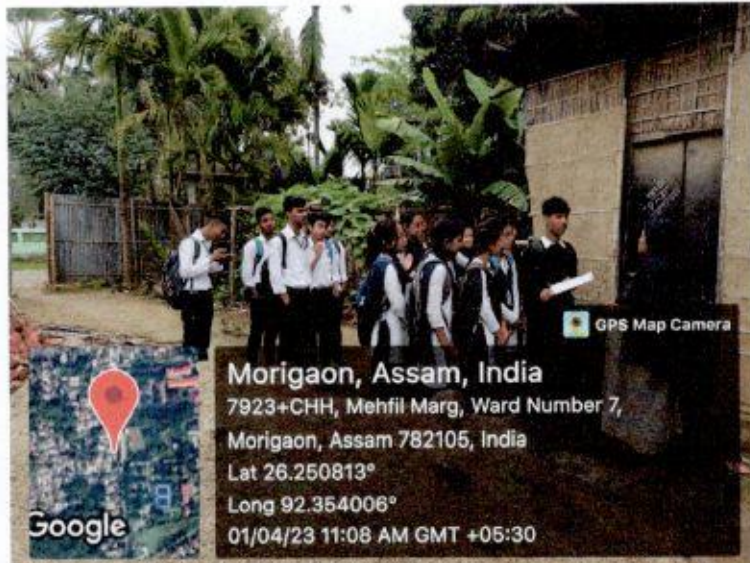

1. Students get a better idea regarding poverty scenario in urban area.
2. They could find out the anomalies in distribution of BPL card.
3. The poor households are happy to share their deprivation as no body willing to listen them earlier.

A report
on
Mask & Sanitizer Distribution Programm

Date: 15 March 2021

Perhaps one of the most striking lifestyle changes resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic is the mandatory use of face masks in grocery stores, restaurants and other public places. Wearing a mask, especially when in close proximity to others, is imperative to slowing the spread of COVID-19.

On dated 15 March 2021, Morigaon College organized a day long programme on use of Mask and proper use of hand wash with soap water at Morigaon Town. The Teacher and students take part in this awareness programme.

People are encouraged to wash hands frequently, use antiseptics to clean household items, wear masks in public places, avoid meeting people with colds and coughs, observe physical distance, avoid crowded places, and stay home as much as possible. We have communicated to people to refrain from shaking hands, kissing, and hugging for the safety of their loved ones, family members, and the broader community, as these measures will help us defeat this global pandemic.
