Topic: Post Modernism, Colonial Discourse and Archaeology of Northeast India

Number of Participants: 69

Objectives: The objectives of the workshop were:

- To make the students aware about the prospects of Archaeology
- To let them understand regarding the potentialities of Archaeology as a branch of study in Northeast India.

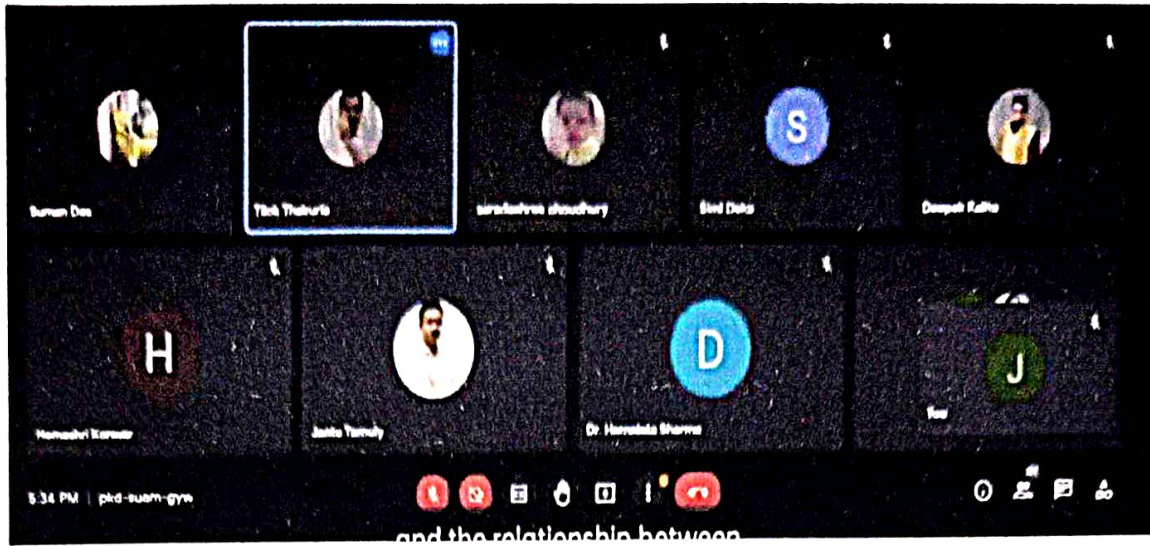

Report: Dr. Tilok Thakuria has been working on the promotion of the Archaeology of Northeast India from a very long time. His recent researches on the finding of Stone jars in the Karbi Anglong District of Assam have gained limelight in the international sphere. The speaker discussed on the theme of Post-Modernism and the reflections of North-East India in the colonial discourses. The speaker also talked at length about the sub-ordinated reflections of archaeology in the region as depicted in the colonial school of writing. The speaker interacted with the participants regarding the theme as well.

Outcome: The students gained immensely from the workshop. They learned about the various possibilities of studying Archaeology and the prospects of it in Northeast India. The students also gained knowledge regarding the various scope and knowledge of the subject and the limitations in the study of archaeological findings in Northeast.
